

Falling Water Falls – Signal Mountain

A very short trail (300 yds) takes you to the top of a spectacular waterfall (photos by Daniel Hyams). Not very much water goes over it, particularly in dry weather, but it is noteworthy for its great height (over 100ft) and the fact that this is a "free fall", with no obstructions on the way down. However, it is difficult to see the fall without going to the edge of the cliff, which is EXTREMELY DANGEROUS - definitely not suitable for small children, or for people with a fear of heights! Just to the north of Falling Water Falls, but separated from it by a low cliff, is a 2.3 mile trail to Mabbit Spring.

Directions: From the traffic lights at the top of the mountain, follow the main road until you pass Lynn's Market; fork right on Fairmount Pike, then take the first right onto Key Hulse Rd. (which becomes Lake Ave.) Take the third left, onto Ivory Ave. Bear right on Chestnut Ave. (which becomes Forest Park Drive) and follow this road until it ends in a loop. There is a small parking area at the trailhead.

Coordinates:

Trailhead      N35° 11.25' W85° 16.92'

Map corners:

Top left        N35° 11.53' W85° 17.33'

Top right       N35° 11.52' W85° 16.75'

Bottom left    N35° 11.00' W85° 17.34'

Bottom right   N35° 10.99' W85° 16.76'

Hike Chattanooga.com